Obligations as an Electrical Contractor

A person must not carry on or offer to carry on or hold out that the person carries on or is willing to carry on any class of electrical contracting that, under the regulations, is a prescribed class of electrical contracting unless the person is registered under the Electricity Safety Act 1998 as an electrical contractor in respect of electrical contracting of that class and holds the prescribed insurance. The prescribed insurance is insurance against public liability for personal injury or damage to property in conjunction with the electrical contracting work of the registered electrical contractor with a minimum cover of $5,000,000

A registered electrical contractor is responsible for all electrical installation work it is engaged to carry out and must ensure that the work is safe, complies with the regulations, is inspected if required and that a certificate of electrical safety is issued for all work carried out. A registered electrical contractor must electronically notify Energy Safe each time a certificate is completed, give a copy of the certificate to the person for whom the work was carried out and lodge a copy of the certificate with Energy Safe.

A registered electrical contractor must not publish or cause to be published any advertisement, notice or statement that the contractor carries on or is willing to carry on electrical contracting work unless the advertisement, notice or statement includes the registered number of the contractor.

A registered electrical contractor must keep a register of licensed electrical installation workers who are employed by the contractor. This register must be available for inspection at all reasonable times by Energy Safe. A registered electrical contractor must not employ a person in the carrying out of electrical installation work unless the person is a licensed electrical installation worker of a particular class related to the contractor's business or an apprentice within the meaning of the Education and Training Reform Act 2006, in a trade that involves carrying out electrical installation work of a class relating to the contractor's business.

An application for renewal of registration must be accompanied by details of any changes in the information provided in the application for the registration or for the most recent renewal of registration or in any other circumstances relating to the application.

Registered electrical contractors must notify Energy Safe in writing within 10 business days after:

- any change in the circumstances of a person nominated as a technical supervisor that would affect the person's ability to effectively supervise electrical installation work carried out by the electrical contractor
- any change in the circumstances of a person nominated as a business supervisor that would affect the person's ability to be responsible for the management and administration of the business of the electrical contractor
- any other circumstances relating to the name or status as a legal person of the registered electrical contractor.

Conditions Related to Technical Supervisors

It is a condition of registration that all electrical installation work carried out by the registered electrical contractor is effectively supervised by a technical supervisor. Effective supervision means being present at the site of the electrical work to the extent necessary to ensure that the work is being correctly performed and being aware of the details of the electrical work being performed and giving detailed instructions and directions with respect to the electrical work.

Failure to comply with this condition could result in the contractor's registration being suspended or cancelled.

Conditions Related to Business Supervisors

It is a condition of registration that the electrical contracting business is effectively managed and administered by the business supervisor.

Failure to comply with this condition could result in the contractor's registration being suspended or cancelled.
